

Newsletter

Thoughts to Ponder

Keep Christmas in Your Heart

December 2009

www.jeanwarner.com

This is the time of the year when the love energy seems to explode. The holiday festivities bring family and friends together in a joyful ambience of giving and receiving blessings and fond memories. It is a time for music and fellowship, of high expectations and excited planning. The Christ energy pours down upon us and the goodness within us emanates into a collective consciousness of hope, love, and peace. All of this harbors the emergence of a new year in which the visions of a better life present themselves as we mark the end of a cycle and the start of a new field of opportunity.

Yet time as we record it is a man-made agenda. As we grow into an understanding of infinity as it relates the eternal now, we will realize that every day, every instant, provides a new beginning, a new extension of our growth, and a new opportunity to expand our love. We do not need to mark off periods of time and create new beginnings. We can celebrate every day and enjoy every moment. The energies of the Christ are always available. We need but open our hearts and receive them.

Celebrating our holidays is not a bad thing. But is it not a bit limiting to express more love, light, peace, and joy at a marked-off period of “time” when the blessings we seek are always available to us and the opportunities to extend them to others are unlimited?

This is merely a way of saying: keep Christmas in your hearts constantly into the continuum. For the love of God is unending, and the life of the Christ whose birth we celebrate once a year is a life that has no beginning nor ending, for it is eternal. Treasure the gifts he has bestowed upon us but know that his love is always with us. He planted seeds in our hearts for us to nourish and bring to fruition, and they are about to blossom!

For the true teachings of Jesus are beginning to be understood on a deeper level, and the value of his inspiring life and golden words are blooming into a heritage of treasures more precious than we had ever imagined. So we will celebrate his birth on Earth this year with knowledge deep in our hearts that will forever be a catalyst for our ascent into the promise he left us if we choose to accept it.

Thoughts to Ponder

mary.jean.77@hotmail.com

Copyright © 2009. All rights reserved.